

A "SILVER FOX" IN ACTION

Supporting the widespread land war in Viet Nam is a vigorous and unrelenting air assault that is spearheaded by pilots of the U.S. Navy. Deployed on five aircraft carriers off the coast of Viet Nam, 400 Navy aircraft attack the enemy almost daily to seek out and destroy his bases, depots and vehicles.

Called Task Force 77 or the "Attack Carrier Striking Force" of the Seventh Fleet, this armada of 30 ships—including missile-firing cruisers and destroyers—is assigned the difficult task of cutting off war supplies flowing from North Viet Nam to enemy forces in the south.

A key unit in the armada is a bomber squadron best known as the Silver Foxes, and a pilot who has served with distinction in the Silver Foxes is 26-year-old Lieutenant Albert R. Hyde of Constantine.

In 20 months with the squadron Al has made 211 missions and earned 17 Air Medals, three unit commendations and the Viet Nam Service Medal, plus a recommendation for the Distinguished Flying Cross. Though he doesn't read or speak Vietnamese, Al finds enemy in North Viet Nam more easily than in California, where he has lived two years. He flies his missions without maps, but knows the country so well he is often able to elude enemy fire. His plane has been hit nine times, but he managed to land his F-4 Phantom jet safely aboard each time. He was more scared to land a damaged jet on board his carrier, the USS Constellation, one night than he was at being hit.

For the future, Al is to be reassigned soon: "I hope to go to a flight school and continue my career on that line."

On scheduled flight missions, Navy pilots like Lt. Hyde walk leisurely to their aircraft to the cockpit.

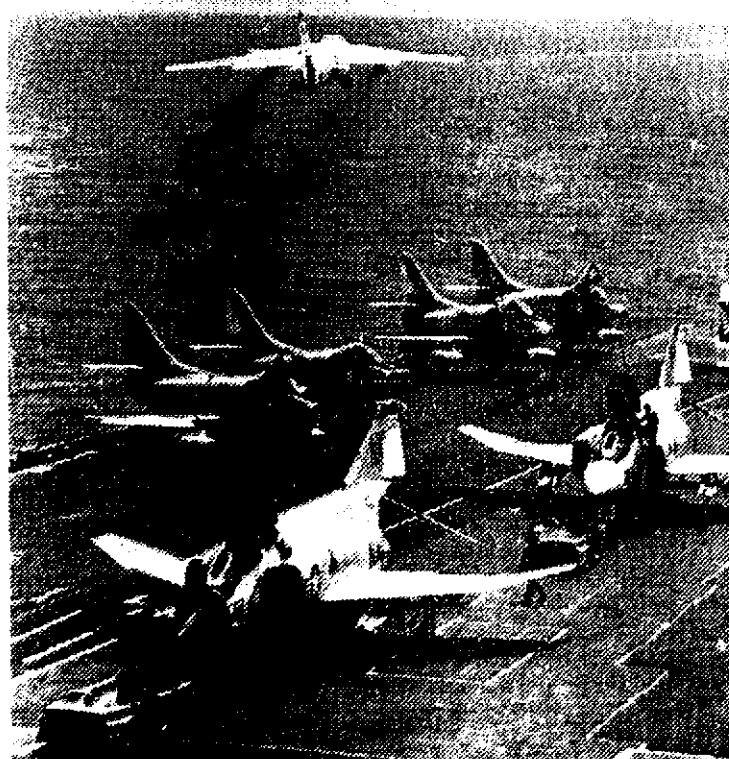

Before a launch Lt. Hyde checks his gun pod to be sure that all equipment is in good working order. The lieutenant, like all Navy combat pilots, wears an ammunition vest and carries survival gear.

In preparation for a catapult launching, Lt. Hyde's aircraft is pushed into position by his flight deck crew.

Waiting in his cockpit, Lt. Hyde watches as his fellow pilots being launched.

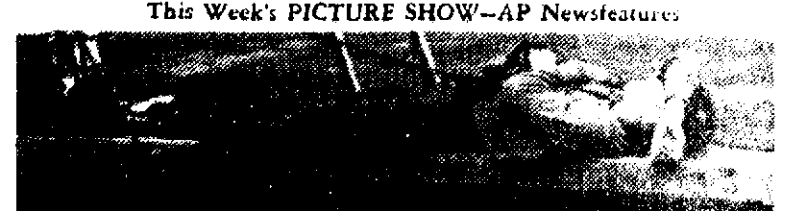

A jet plane roars off the deck of the Constellation in the Tonkin Gulf, where the aircraft carrier is on patrol.

Veteran Lt. Hyde (bottom) laughs and tells his roommates he is too busy flying to worry.

Lt. Hyde doodles with a new guitar. He's been too busy with his tight schedule to learn many chords.

Christmas Belles Come In All Sizes

PRETTY HOLIDAY fashions are important to girls of any age. Paris decrees the "cage" for most festive occasions. Blouse white cotton organdy cage (left), brightly banded in red, shadows a red-and-white cotton polka dot A-line dress. Bright white dots embroidered on chocolate brown tulle and cotton voile (right) add up to a delectable holiday fashion. The smock dress is topped off with white organdy cuffs and collar. These designs are by Cinderella of Rosenau Brothers.

Sportswear Crumbles the Kooky

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Until fashion went mad the American girl had a special kind of look in sportswear. For casual weekends she had a knack for looking lean, trim and chic.

Then last year's fashion absurdities hit the scene and that special chic disappeared behind the kookiest clothes seen outside of a costume party.

This season the way-out look is on its last legs. And women are once again taking to the great outdoors without Op.

A new line (by Russ) will help the former "kook" to look more like herself again.

All the pieces put together add up to a collection built for the rigors of active cold-weather sports as well as college and career activities. For careers there's a carload of tweed suits, shirts and jumpers. For outdoors there are car coats, parkas, separates and Russlers, the latest in western pants.

All come in fabrics that look soft—Meltons, wools, corduroys. And they may steal their detailing from the best in menswear but there's no doubt they're designed for girls.

The cowboy look comes on strong. In corduroys trim western pants are worn with a western-style print shirt. Made of easy-care fabric, the shirts don't need ironing.

Jacket styles are varied. Outstanding are the Meltons with plaid linings. The new TAPESTRY JACKET (left) is what a pretty girl would wear—especially one who no longer wants the way-out look. The rolled knit collar and cuffs make for added warmth. It's worn with Russlers—cowboy style pants. On a chilly evening before the fire the outfit (right) has the ideal touch—casual, warm and feminine. The beribboned pullover with lacy stretch trim comes in flattering light and bright shades. It's worn with side-zipped stretch pants, tapered and proportioned for perfect fit. These are Russ designs.

est is a hoodless parka in a rich tapestry with a rolled knit collar and snug knit cuffs.

There are also outfits for sitting around a campfire or lounging indoors on a chilly night. The prettiest is a beribboned wool pullover with lacy-stitch trim, worn with coordinated stretch pants that are tapered and proportioned for perfect fit.

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

HARD OR SOFT, WRITE IT RIGHT: The second ink-shaking revolution in 20 years is hitting pen users in a scripto-mania flood. Ballpoints took on flowing fountain pens in the mid-'40s... now they are being challenged by the soft-tips (which will outsell conventional fountain pens by 500 to 1,000 per cent this year). The causes behind this felt-point boom are various: President Johnson likes to sign state documents publicly with batches of them... sensitive souls enjoy their soft, sensual writing feel... even timid souls grow expansive with their bigger, bolder speed and bright colors... and doctors prefer to mark patients' skin with them (because they don't tickle). The principle of the soft point has been around since Chinese and Egyptians invented hair-tipped writing equipment. Modern ones were first developed for business (like marking crates)... then kiddies took over to mess up white paper at pre-school... next, commercial artists took them up. But the big sales skyrocketing now has come from your purchases, especially of the newest cartridge type... not only for studies, but also to touch up bare backs, carryingless ears, and naked knees... These last to carry important messages like campus political slogans or, "I'm available"... "going steady"... "engaged" (washable inks preferred).

WILL YOU JOIN THE WEAR-A-WIG TREND? Wigs, wigs—the whole hairy lot, including those swooning false eyelashes and those paste-on-papa hair pieces... continue "in" and growing in use. Today's trend started when the middle oldies (women from their late 30s to late 50s—and, increasingly, men) wanted to look younger, so they wiggled into long-haired wigs to look like your hair (nowwig). But the wig industry claims wigs have become fashion, really a new kind of accessory... you should wear a different kind with each different kind of dress. This fashion plot is aimed at you, too—so watch out! Emphasizing this warning is the news of a multimillion dollar deal for harvesting hair, signed up by the U.S. hair products industry with the Indian government. Tons and tons of hair (three to six feet long) will be reaped at holy Hindu temples... where millions of men and women pay annual pilgrimages, and the custom is to worship only after heads are shaven naked.

YOU'LL LOSE 18-20 DAYS OF SCHOOL, THIS YEAR: Switching from YOUTH BEAT's previous exposés of hooky-playing in France and Indonesia, we can now give you the inside dope on legitimate school absences—in the United States. Here's how much there will be this year and why. On the average you'll be stuck home for 18 to 20 (school) days, before next summer vacation... though this average will vary by school, grade, region and other factors. Typical are the following days for being out of school, cited for one metropolitan, last year: Junior high school students, 17½; vocational high school students, 20½; and for the apparently flimsier breed of academic high school students, 29. What will this year's chief cause be?—Surprise, surprise—sniffles! A bout 60 per cent of school absenteeism stems from the common cold... next come stomach disorders. Similar causes are at the root of college class absenteeism, with one major exception—third highest cause of college class absence is emotional disturbances (also the estimated cause of 50 per cent of college "dropouts").

FRANCE'S SINGING SPARROW WINGS TO U.S.: This mid-December, a sparrow of a singing teen-girl—4 ft. 10, weighing 90 lbs., aged 19—will arrive on her fourth trip to the United States. Mireille Mathieu, not big here yet, tops the record lists in France and is a big hit around Europe. To American ears her French-cabaret style pop music sounds like something sung in the back of the nose, sadly, by Woody Woodpecker. But she's good at it... does Frenchified rock appealing, too. Also, she's got pluck. A year ago, pony-sized Mireille was a $15 a week factory girl who took a chance and entered an amateur television talent contest. Alotted two minutes, she burned through to the audience with a song so moving that French airwaves haven't been the same since.

MISTAKES IN JUDGEMENT: MISS TAKES PUNISHMENT

Dear Helen: Can't a girl make one mistake? Here's the problem. I am grounded for a year! Just because my parents had to pick us up at a dance. You see, there was fist fighting and a bunch of hoods at this dance, so we tried to get out. There's a rule you can't go outside except when you leave for good by the front door. So the Policeman caught us trying to get out and called our parents to pick us up.

Well, we were supposed to be at a movie instead, but there was only an adult movie playing and us girls didn't want to see it, so we went to this dance instead. There was one other thing that made my folks mad. They weren't home and a bunch of boys came over to the house. I knew the boys real well and didn't think it would hurt to let them in a while. We just played records and I gave them something to eat. But the neighbors saw us and we've got to have the nosiest neighbors in the world. They made a big deal of it next day to my folks, before I got a chance to tell them.

If I stay home for a year I'll become a complete hermit. I just want to go out and see the kids and have a good time like normal kids do. I wouldn't even want to date, but just be with a boy at a dance or game and have my parents take me and pick me up. Isn't a year an awful long time when it wasn't really my fault? — HELPLESS IN PRISON

Dear Helen: My father goes out with other women and my mother stays home and gets crying drunk every night. I don't think it's her fault — my father drove her to it. She is afraid to get a divorce and I hate the way the neighbors talk about us. Please give me some ways to try to get my father back and my mother to stop drinking. — MIXED UP AND WORRIED

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Noel Coward's 25-year-old comedy, "Blithe Spirit" was broadcast on NBC television Wednesday night and it seemed that the years have not been altogether kind to the play.

Perhaps it was because television has recently had an influx of amusing supernatural creatures — witches and gnomes — but what once seemed a bright, brittle and terribly sophisticated play looked slightly square and middle-aged.

The story concerns the misadventures of a British novelist after a medium at a seance materializes the spectre of his first wife, imperiling his second marriage and threatening his reason.

Part of the problem, one suspects, was the necessity of chopping down a full-length play to make a 90-minute television show. One never had a chance to enjoy the mischievousness of the ghostly Elvira, or to feel anything but mild annoyance at the petulance of the harried husband caught between two angry spouses, past and present.

Ruth Gordon playing Madame Arcati, the medium, walked off with the plum role of the evening and the acting honors. She gave the part the heartiness of a British colonel and rolled off clichés as if she had coined the phrase, "Let's put our shoulders to the wheel."

The production was handsome and the color beautiful as it all that I run their names into the dirt. The trouble is I can't tell him off because that's just what he wants me to do — so he could laugh at me getting mad. What can I do? And why do boys act that way? — K.R.M.

Dear K: According to my mail, a girl almost always loses when she dates an "expector" typeboy, and she's lucky if it's only her temper!

These fasties must prove themselves with conquests because they're basic weaklings. When a girl says "No" they resort to female tactics: gossip, slander, cattiness... their way of getting even for hurt pride.

What can you do? Tell the truth but only when necessary and don't shout it out. Then top it off with "Poor Tom. He's really got a problem." — H.

Prophets of GOD

That's what they were. They were of great faith, these Trail Blazers, and most surely they were commissioned of God. On their westward trek, they built homes, planted families and erected churches and schools. These dedicated pioneers set out to finish what had been intended in the first place. God commanded, "go ye into all the world," and these imbued started their journey which has made life more abundant for all of us. No sacrifice was too great. They were living examples of Americanism and true ambassadors of a great God. Now, may we take heart and from their consecrated example, erect crosses for Christ and lead those about us to a richer, fuller life in Him.

You In The Church
The Church to You — form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH
Tooth Transplants May Replace Partial Plates
By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Susan writes that her two front teeth became abscessed after being chipped in a fall. Her dentist tried to save them; even treated the nerve; but nothing helped and they finally had to be extracted. She has been wearing a removable plate with two front teeth on it, but she wants to know: can two new teeth be transplanted into this space?

Alas, Susan, your problem comes too soon. So far, replants and transplants have been successful, but mostly in the laboratory, on laboratory animals.

Techniques aren't anywhere near as sophisticated as those for other organ transplants. Recent accounts of vital organ transplants are fantastic! Rate of development in this field of medicine has prompted one way to say that when he gets old he's going to have a whole new body made for himself.

But so far, the tooth is defiant. For scores of years successful cases have been reported, but as yet routine transplants and replants of human teeth are not in the dental repertoire.

One giant step has been experimentation with "tooth banks." Experimental animals' (hamsters) teeth have been extracted and quick frozen for long periods of time. Some were then replanted into their original sockets, others were transplanted. Percentage of success has been encouragingly high. In a large number of cases, though, the teeth became abscessed, areas around them infected, and there was a tendency of the host to "reject" them.

It's conceivable, though, that some day, not too far off, when a tooth is extracted, a donor tooth of similar size, shape and color could be requisitioned from a tooth bank and transplanted into the empty socket. It could be fixed in place temporarily with a splint, the host treated with antibiotics, and in a few days a new tooth will have "grown."

But, Susan, don't wait until the new technique is perfected. Let your dentist make you a fixed bridge to fill the gap. Fixed bridges are far superior to removable ones, where they can be used. They function better, and cosmetic results can be excellent.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Better Homemaking
By AILEEN SNODDY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Christmas is for children. This year, though, instead of letting the expectant ones sit back and wait to be inundated with gifts and goodies, put them to work.

Children do enjoy being part of the holiday planning. Their personalized gifts and cards help retain the spirit of the holiday—something that each year appears to lose ground in a cash-register rush to outdo who knows whom at this stage. The Joneses claim they went broke last Christmas. With this in mind we note that gifts, cards and decorations done by the children help save money.

Cards, for example, can be made, using potatoes and apples as stencils. Just cut the apple or the potato on one end in the design wanted, ink the design and stamp it onto white stock paper. Colored construction paper is ideal for cut-out trees and ornaments. Paste the colored designs on white paper and decorate with bits of colored paper. Those who are more advanced in their art work can draw a Nativity scene with India ink and cover it lightly when dry with white water color.

The black ink will show through the paper, transmitting a snowy appearance.

Simple ornaments for the tree, mantel or dining table centerpiece can start with a Styrofoam ball. Decorate the ball with velvet, sequins or cover with gold paper brads.

The traditional Three Wise Men make a perfect table ensemble and children can design them with aluminum foil. Simply mold each figure over a piece of cardboard shaped like a cone. Use a foam ball for the head and pipe cleaners for the arms. Wrap in foil and add glitter for nose, eyes and mouth.

Ornaments take little effort although the young ones may do a lot of tongue biting during their work. For paper ornaments, have a child fold a sheet of construction paper once down the middle and then cut the outside edge to the toy shape he wants. He then unfolds it and decorates with glitter, other colored paper or whatever suits his imagination.

Pipe cleaners make excellent reindeer: just twist to shape. Several colored straws,

WIN AT BRIDGE

Al Morehead points out that there are times when a sure thing double is going to misfire. West didn't have a sure thing double of six spades but he felt that it was sound enough for a bank to lend money at prime rates.

It was mighty sound but it was expensive. South looked at his broken spade suit and good six card club suit and decided that six spades would not make and that six no-trump might.

West doubled six no-trump also and made his best opening lead of the six of hearts. This set up a lot of heart tricks for East and West but it did them no good. South started the clubs and dropped the jack. That gave him six club tricks. Then he went after diamonds and was lucky enough to drop another jack for four diamond tricks. The heart and spade aces accounted for two more tricks and South had made his no-trump slam.

We sort of sympathize with West. South had never rebid clubs and it was extremely unlucky that he would show up with a solid six card suit. On the other hand West had a sure profit at six spades. He need not have been so greedy.

Morehead did not comment on South's bidding, but we will. We just don't like it. We would prefer a three-club rebid to one spade. This would have lost the 4-4 spade fit this time but would not have lost it had North held a different sort of hand. For instance if North had held ♠KQ43; ♥103; ♦A10532; ♣J2, he would have bid three spades over three clubs and South could have proceeded quickly to what would have been a cinch spade slam.

A—Bid four spades. You have a good enough hand to expect to make game but not enough to be interested in a slam.

Yule Shoppers Travel Two Billion Miles

By KELLY SMITH
WASHINGTON (AP) — Tired feet? Wait until Dec. 25.

The American Podiatry Association said today Christmas shoppers would hike an estimated 25 miles apiece this year — for a total 2 billion miles. That's four round trips to the moon.

"In crowded stores, especially around bargain counters, shoppers' feet and ankles are subject to many of the same rigors football players encounter," say the footdoctors.

Worse yet, being an athlete doesn't help much. Christmas shopping, says the APA, "is a much rougher sport than golf or tennis."

Dr. Seward P. Nyman, spokesman for the association's 5,000 doctors, says "Christmas activity is undoubtedly more severe than people realize. Shoppers will be kicked, stepped on, gouged and generally roughed up."

The association recommended four rules for shoppers:

1. Wear low-heeled shoes. Spike heels are like walking on stilts. Carry an extra pair.

2. Take a five-minute break every hour or so, sit down and flex your toes. Keep feet warm and dry.

3. When queued up in a long line, keep moving. Shift your weight constantly.

4. At the end of the day, massage feet with softening cream and prop them up at an angle higher than the head.

Does Dr. Nyman have any special rules? "Frankly, I try to get my wife to do the shopping. I admire her for being a Trojan."

Filming a fight scene Wednesday for the television series "Get Smart," an actor accidentally broke Adams' nose.

Adams, who plays agent Maxwell Smart, was treated by a private physician.

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — The loss column has become the most important statistic of the young season for the Los Angeles Lakers.

"We're not that far behind the Warriors even though West and Baylor were out," said Walt Hazzard. "How can anyone say we're not in it?"

At the start of the season, the Lakers were the favorites to win the Western Division title in the National Basketball Association for the third consecutive season.

That was until Jerry West and Elgin Baylor, the Laker superstars, went out of the lineup with injuries. (West missed nine games, Baylor 10.)

A month after the season opened, the Lakers were in the unfamiliar role of a last-place team.

"It was an evolution," Hazzard said. "What else could it be playing without Elgin and Jerry?"

With West out of the lineup, Hazzard inherited the job of running the Laker offense.

"That was my best period of the year," Walt said. "I found that being under pressure like that made me play better."

West's absence also meant that Hazzard and Gail Goodrich dropped their running battle for the other starting guard position. It was the first time they had been reunited as a backcourt duo since their days at UCLA.

Outdoor Notebook

RIVER RANCH ACRES, Fla. — Within the waters of the Kissimmee River, which cuts down through the marshlands of south-central Florida, there lurks the meanest, most ill-bred, red-eyed, tobacco-chewing bum ever to belt a yellow popper. He is the large mouth black bass.

On a recent day, when the working classes were shivering up north, a breeze as soft as a summer Sunday afternoon played gently across the starched faces of a pair of New York carpetbaggers as they waved their flyrods over the black waters.

They had parked their aluminum outboard at the mouth of a slough where the current rippled the surface and where a dozen bass were periodically thrashing the surface in hot pursuit of large, cigar-sized minnows.

Roy Attaway, a sandy-haired South Carolinian who is "camping out" in Manhattan lately, swung the popper onto the surface and began twitching his rod tip, causing the concavity in the lure to disturb the water and aggravate the bass. On the third twitch the surface exploded and a four-pounder ascended through the surface like a Nike missile, the yellow popper lodged firmly in his lip.

The brute crashed down on his side, flipped into the depths and sulked there, shaking his head in an effort to throw the lure. "Come on, you bum," murmured Attaway as he applied pressure to the prey. "Begin your death-walk."

Then the fish began to move steadily into the mainstream of the Kissimmee, peeling the tapered line off the single-action spool. At the end of his run, the fish flashed at the surface, whipped his tail and reversed course and headed like a torpedo toward the boat, his bronze back clearly visible with the dorsal fin arched and stiff.

Desperately stripping in line Attaway remarked that this really was not what he meant by a death-walk. The fish didn't stop. He ran smack into the port bow, making a dull thud-sound against the aluminum. In a few seconds the batter was out for the count, floating on his side near the boat.

"Beautiful maneuver," Attaway's companion said. "You were in command every moment of the fight." Choosing to ignore this, Attaway reached over the gunwale and lifted the trophy into the boat.

The two anglers took their limit of bass that morning. But none of the other catches were nearly so remarkable as the one described above where it can truthfully be said that the fish "knocked himself out" for Florida fishing.

WILLIE MUNOZ envisions his own name in bright lights on the marquee of boxing's show place . . . and the wallop in his glove-encased fist will put it there.

Munoz Eyes Room at Top

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Wilfredo Munoz is a new twist on the story of the disadvantaged kid who comes out of a bad neighborhood to make it big in boxing.

Munoz is 21, a welterweight who has won 15 of 15 professional fights, 12 by knockouts, and has so impressed New York fight people that they're calling him a champion for sure.

And he has come up the modern hard way.

No big syndicate (so far) behind him.

He has never been hauled in by the police. He never ran with gangs. He's never even had a street fight, which in New York is not easy for anybody to avoid.

"My neighborhood is not great," Willie said, "but the people all have jobs. And the Italians, the Irish, the Jews, the Negroes, the Puerto Ricans and the Protestants all get along just fine."

"But it is a bad neighborhood to be from if you want to fight. That's the disadvantage I had, because I've always wanted to be a fighter."

"My parents don't want me to fight. My girl doesn't want me to fight. Our neighbors, they all just think it's a stinking business to get into."

Munoz lives on Manhattan's lower east side, once one of the city's badlands. Carlos Ortiz, the lightweight champion and discoverer of Willie Munoz, is from the same neighborhood.

"Carlos was coming up around 1954 or '55," Munoz said. "He had a fight practically every day, because there weren't very many Puerto Ricans around then."

"Street fighting is dangerous and should be policed, but if you want to be a fighter it can toughen you up a little bit. Teaches you how to take a punch and not be afraid to throw one."

"I had to learn how to be tough in a gym. I met Carlos when I was 13 and he took me to the gym and since then he has taught me all I know about boxing."

"I'm nearly always in his camp when he's in training. We really go at it. We have wars in the ring. He's the only guy who has ever come close to knocking me down. But I've hit him a couple of shots that made him blink, too."

Munoz is still growing and chances are his championship, if it comes, will be in the middleweight division.

Fight people call him both a boxer and a puncher, even though he is perhaps a couple of years away from the big time. He is bright, articulate, back. We're going to find out just how much we have, every one of us.

"It's going to take a tremendous effort to make up the lost ground. This league is a lot more balanced now than last season. Detroit is a better club; so is New York. St. Louis is doing all right with Zelmo Beaty out. And the Chicago team is no push-over."

Hazzard and Goodrich left the distinct impression they are looking forward to the rest of the NBA race.

"It's always interesting learning about yourself," Hazzard said.

The Veteran Rookie

If you're wondering how Mexico City's doing in role as host city for the 1968 Olympic Games, here's the clue: Munich, Germany, selected as the site for the Games, is already further along in its preparations than our manana neighbors to the south.

I don't care what the polls say. Michigan State was the most impressive football team I saw in '66 and outplay Notre Dame in their tie game. In fact, why not San Diego for No. 1?

When George Allen, the coach of the Los Angeles Rams, was asked to vote for the rookie of the year, he included the names of Bill George, his veteran linebacker, and Gino Marchetti of the Colts on his ballot. After all, they are new to the league this year—after being away a season. As they both left the field after the recent Colt-Ram game, George said to Gino, "You're too old to be playing (this game) at the age of 41."

"Nuts," retorted Gino, "I was an all-pro when I was 41, Bill."

Even football's computerized these days. I asked Gil Brandt, the chief scout of the Dallas Cowboys, how he rated a guard from Florida State named Del Williams. "Oh," said Gil, "he's real high in our IBM ratings—in the top 40."

When Chi Chi Rodriguez competed in the recent Caddis Cup matches in Japan, he turned to his caddy (the unfamiliar course and asked, "How do you putt the greens?" . . . The caddy, a demure lass (like all the caddies in Japan), answered, "Keep the ball low." . . . the fairway, he turned to the caddy after a long drive and asked, "How far am I from home?" . . . Chi Chi shrugged innocently, "I don't know where you live."

Chi Chi's definition of a golfer: a guy who makes a shot hollers "fore" and writes five.

Speaking of golf, Tom Weiskopf, the young pro general endorsed by the other players as the next "big" man on tour, is indoctrinating his bride to the game. The former Jean Ruth, also a former Miss Minnesota, breaks Tom with her naive questions: like when he leaves for the line in the morning, she'll ask, "Are you gonna go all the way around today?" . . . He's going to put them all in a book.

Two former UCLA All-American basketball players, Walt Hazzard and Gail Goodrich, heartily endorse Lou Alcindor, the 7-1 supercenter for the Bruins. "Look out, college basketball," warns Hazzard, who has occasionally scrimmaged with the tall sophomore. "He's gonna be great. I'd put him up with the four or five best centers in pro ball right now." . . . "He's going to dominate the game," says Goodrich, "like a Russell, like Big Chamberlain. No question about it."

It's just now getting to be generally known, but with NFL circles Chuck Howley of the Dallas Cowboys has been recognized for a couple of years as the best corner linebacker in the league—especially because of the job he does on payback defense.

The big holdup in the realignment of the NFL in four divisions at their prolonged session in New York was the Philly group's stubborn insistence on being the same quartet with the New York Giants. It seems clubs are not only interested in the big paycheck they can drag out of New York, but the fact the Giants have become pigeons on the playing field.

Put this down in your future book. When the NFL gets around to picking its league president at the February meetings (off the beach at Waikiki, incidentally), public relations director Jim Kensil will be the top candidate.

Between you'n' me, the main objection CBS has sharing the Super Bowl telecast deals with personality. It's afraid it'll get skunked in the ratings because it has no team to match the NBC combine of Curt Gowdy at Paul Christman.

rush and the ability of their respective offensive lines to nullify that rush, probably will decide the battle.

Unusually mild weather has settled over Baltimore with the temperatures in 60s or even higher. It is supposed to cooler by Saturday with a chance of showers.

The Green Bay-Baltimore game is Saturday's only pro football action. The rest of the National League and the American League swing into action Sunday.

St. Louis, trailing first-place Dallas by one game in the Eastern race with two remaining plays at Atlanta while the Cardinals entertain Washington, the Cardinals and Dallas are heavy favorites. Elsewhere Pittsburgh visits New York; Minnesota is at Detroit; Cleveland plays at Philadelphia; San Francisco hosts Chicago.

Long, Long-Hair Controversy

W e sometimes wonder what there is about hair styles that seems to infuriate educators. Anything unconventional in the way of haircuts, beards, goatees or other treatment of the hair on scalp or face causes a crisis on the campus. Such a one occurred some time ago at the Richmond Professional Institute in Virginia, when the schoolmasters told three students they would have to give up their beards and long hair or leave school.

The three took the case to court and lost. A Richmond court and the Virginia Court of Appeals held that the college rule against long hair and beards was reasonable. They said an individual, as a citizen, might have rights to such expressions of his individuality as pleased him, but that as a student he surrendered those rights. The Supreme Court of the United States has upheld the Virginia courts' ruling, which just about does it unless Congress can be persuaded to submit a Constitutional Amendment covering freedom of coiffure.

It's all a little silly, we suppose, but it is hard to conclude that the three students are any more ridiculous than the school's trustees. A school that can't cope with a few beards and unkempt hairdos won't get far with the average young person's resistance to learning. —Huntington (W. Va.) Herald-Advertiser

Mercurochrome On Cancer

Many cures for crime currently proposed resemble dosing cancer with mercurochrome. It may be good medicine but doesn't cure that deep-seated ill. Instead, says Dr. George Beto, head of Texas Department of Corrections, our crime remedies must treat the causes. These, he told Texas Agricultural Workers Association's recent convention, include:

Lessening of spiritual and moral values.
Loss of the beneficial influence of close family ties.
Urbanization, with its crowding of the impoverished.

Failure to teach youth the necessity and dignity of work.
There are others, but the able administrator of the Texas prison system, in his work and his tireless travels to inform the public, emphasizes these fundamentals. He takes the thousands who are sent to him by Dallas and other cities and works to instill in them the basics they were not taught beyond the prison walls.

Through discipline, emphasis on work, the teaching of salable skills to the unskilled, Texas Department of Corrections is efficiently and economically helping to reduce crime and restore the convicted to good citizenship. But the prison population will continue to grow unless Americans return to those virtues which made this country great.

China Sending Macao Supplies

MACAO (AP) — Red China resumed food supplies today to riot-wracked Macao, raising hopes that Peking plans no drastic action against the Portuguese colony.

An estimated 300,000 tons of rice, vegetables, and meat reached the island from Red China, the first supplies since bloody rioting last weekend. An uneasy calm prevailed as pro-Communist organizations demanded the Macao government make public the number of casualties and arrests in the riots by pro-Chinese demonstrators protesting alleged police brutality. News reports say eight Chinese were killed and hundreds injured.

For Some the Entire World Turns Dark If the TV Goes on Blink

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Do you have a friend whose whole world turns dark when his television set is on the blink?

Why let him sit there in lonely despair? There is a remedy for his condition. It is an old-fashioned remedy called reading. It has helped people pass the time in pleasure and self-profit for centuries.

So, until the television repairman can call, brighten your friend's plight by sending him a book for Christmas. He may be so grateful he will remember you in his will.

But what book to send him? It is very important to send the right book to the right person. For example, and all in fun, here is a suggested list for people we all know or have heard about:

"Many Are Called"—George Romney, Richard M. Nixon, Ronald Reagan, and perhaps Nelson A. Rockefeller.
"Open the Door"—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"Everything but Money"—your wife or mine.
"The Birds Fall Down"—all the young Democratic congressmen who didn't win re-election.

"Education by Uncle"—any disgruntled U.S. taxpayer.
"Modern American Usage"—Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service.

"Music in a New Found Land"—any U.S. serviceman in Viet Nam.
"The Proud Tower"—Lyndon B. Johnson.

"Keep Your Mouth Closed, Dear"—Joe Valachi, the singing mobster.
"Confessions of a Dilettante"—Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

"The Moment of Wonder"—Ho Chi Minh.
"The Last Gentleman"—Zsa Zsa Gabor.

"Prayer Can Change Your Life"—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr.
"All God's Creatures"—Martin Luther King Jr.

"Lost Cities of Asia"—Mao Tse-tung of China.
"Witness to Our Time"—J. Edgar Hoover.

"The Old Glory"—Former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman.
"The Naked Image"—Gypsy Rose Lee.

"A World Elsewhere"—Pope Paul VI.

Seasickness Kills Scientist
PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — A British Naval scientist died of seasickness, a doctor testified at an inquest Thursday night on Gerald Rogers, 41, a senior scientific officer.

The coroner ruled that Rogers, who was doing one day's duty aboard the frigate HMS Wakeful, died from natural causes. Medical testimony was that he ruptured his gut and that his death was the direct result of seasickness.

The last similar case reported was in America in 1919, said surgeon Lt. Cmdr. Henry Black.

Viet Cong Attacks Near Saigon

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Viet Cong mounted a series of attacks and ambushes within a 35-mile ring around Saigon Friday night and today and in one assault inflicted heavy casualties on Vietnamese troops.

An estimated 500 - man Viet Cong force attacked two companies of Vietnamese popular force soldiers at an army training center 34 miles southeast of Saigon and took a heavy toll before withdrawing, official spokesmen reported.

While the Communists centered on the capital area with this and smaller attacks, 1,700 guerrilla-trained American infantrymen arrived in South Viet Nam in the continuing buildup of U.S. forces and a squadron of F100 Supersabres was added to American air strength here.

The new arrivals brought to 363,700 the number of American servicemen in South Viet Nam. More are expected in the next few days.

On the political front, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk continued his Saigon visit by conferring with top Vietnamese and Americans. Later he told newsmen "we've seen no indication yet" that the Communists would be interested in extending the 48-hour Christmas truce.

"We just haven't heard from them," Rusk said after meeting with Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu.

The first contingent of the U.S. 199th Light Infantry Brigade debarked at Vung Tau, 40 miles south of Saigon. The rest of the 4,000-man brigade was due within a few days. Also scheduled to arrive soon is another full U.S. infantry division.

Repeating earlier statements about a truce extension, Rusk said, "These things have to be done on a basis of what both sides are willing to do. We can't stop half the war."

Churches Ask Viet Nam Go Before UN

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Delegates from most major American churches today approached final action on a proposed plea to the government to put the Viet Nam conflict before the United Nations.

After three sessions of debate, the General Assembly of the National Council of Churches scheduled a vote on a resolution declaring: "We do not acquiesce in the idea that the war must needs be protracted; in our judgment, this war must be brought to an end soon."

To accomplish this, the resolution urges "that the judgment, the responsibility and action of the United Nations be sought," in a way permitting initiatives by U.N. Secretary-General U Thant.

In a separate action, the assembly Thursday called for an extension of the Christmas ceasefire for sufficient time to allow a "cooling off" and to test "the possibilities of negotiation."

Christmas Is a Cake, A True Story That Happened in Hope

Mary Anita Laseter
STAR FEATURE WRITER

"Is it Christmas, Mama?" the small boy asked as he gazed with hungry eyes at a rare thing for him, a cake.

"No, honey, not yet," she said. It was only December 2, and Christmas was nearly a month away. But what did it matter about the date? Christmas is a feeling, not a page on the calendar.

The large family to which the bright-eyed little boy belongs make their home on a farm near Hope, Hope? The name was almost ironic for them, for in a family of 10 children with a father a day laborer who was often unemployed, the situation was often quite bad. Then, the 16-year-old daughter in the family became gravely ill. Things were moving from bad to worse.

But "the Heart of Hope" is not only a slogan; it is an accurate description of the people in our town.

First, a woman living in the area became aware of the family's plight. She phoned a friend at the local newspaper office, and upon hearing the story he made a few more calls soliciting aid. A doctor was contacted, and he gave of his skill and services to the sick member of the family. Food and clothes for others in the household were obtained from various sources in town.

The Hope Lions Club does similar acts over and over again through its Christmas auction program of action that was held in Hope, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week. Various churches and civic groups also try to make Christmas as happy a season as possible for as many people as possible.

Sometimes, though a need comes to the attention of Hope citizens when it is necessary for them to act on their own. They do a fine job either as an organized group or as helpful individuals.

Firm Files 65 Suit Questions

LITTLE ROCK (AP)— Monsanto Co. of St. Louis has submitted 65 interrogatories to the Arkansas Highway Commission to obtain information on what basis the state sued the firm for allegedly fixing asphalt prices.

A copy of the interrogatories was filed in U. S. District Court, where litigation against Monsanto and four other companies is pending.

December 2 was the night the lights were turned on the community Christmas tree in Hope. But the lights in the hearts of everyone would have shined with 1,000 watts if they had seen a certain little boy, one to whom bread was a welcomed thing. One to whom Christmas is a cake.

Extension Titles Are Changed

County Extension Agent in Hempstead County along with those of other counties in Arkansas were assigned new titles effective December 1, 1966, said Calvin J. Caldwell, County Extension Agent.

In the future, county agents will be called county extension agents; associate county agents will be associate county extension agents and assistant county agents will become assistant county extension agents.

Home Demonstration Agents will be known as Extension Home Economists, Associates or assistants will become associate or assistant extension home economists.

This is an attempt to clarify the recent change in titles for extension workers Mr. Caldwell said.

Urges Yule Truce Be Extended

VATICAN CITY (AP)— Pope Paul VI urged today that the Christmas truce in Viet Nam be extended into an Armistice that would allow negotiations for peace.

The Pope said the prospect for an end to the fighting in Southeast Asia appeared to be brighter.

"The idea of an end to hostilities is becoming stronger and more confident," the pontiff said in a speech in St. Peter's Basilica during a Mass marking the feast of the Immaculate Conception.

"If, as it has been announced, a further cessation of hostilities is to follow shortly on the Christmas truce, why do not both parties to the conflict join the two separate truces into a single, continuous period of time, so that new ways may be explored of bringing about an honorable understanding putting an end to the conflict?"

Jack Ruby in Critical Condition

By TOM STUCKEY
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jack Ruby, slayer of Lee Harvey Oswald, was taken from the Dallas County Jail to Parkland Hospital Friday with what the hospital called a serious case of pneumonia.

Phil Burleson, one of Ruby's lawyers, said it was "too early to tell" how the illness might affect a new trial for his client.

Ruby, 35, was convicted and sentenced to death for Oswald's slaying, but the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals recently reversed the 1964 conviction and ordered a new trial outside of Dallas.

Dist. Judge Louis Holland, who has presided over the case since trial Judge Joe B. Brown bowed out, transferred the trial to Wichita Falls but set no date. He indicated it possibly would be in February.

Burleson saw Ruby soon after he arrived at the hospital and described him as a very sick lawyer. "I think he's very sick,"

Burleson said Ruby was being administered oxygen.

"The guy's dying," said Ruby's sister, Eva Grant.

A jail doctor said Ruby had a "throat tickling kind of cough" but at 10 a.m. Friday there was no fever.

Sheriff Bill Decker said he ordered Ruby to the hospital after talking to Ruby for the first time in about 10 days and conferring with Dr. J.M. Pickard, county health officer.

Greek Ferry Death Toll May Be 232

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Shipping officials expressed fear today that scores of unlisted, last-minute passengers may have been aboard the ferry Heraklion and that the toll from its sinking may go above the 232 known dead or missing.

Officials directing recovery operations at Piraeus, the port of Athens, said many persons may have boarded at the last minute and paid their fare after the ferry got under way from Crete. They said naval students from Canoea, on the island of Crete often ride without being recorded on passenger lists.

The 8,900-ton Heraklion sank swiftly in a raging storm at 2 a.m. Thursday, midway on an overnight crossing from Crete to Piraeus with 206 passengers officially listed and 75 in the crew. By Thursday night, rescue ships picked up 49 survivors and 17 bodies.

Twelve more bodies were recovered today.

Crewmen told rescuers trucks and cars, torn from their lashings as the 17-year-old ship tossed in the storm, smashed loading doors that had been weakened by waves. They said a 16-ton refrigerator trailer battered open a bow door and the Aegean Sea, whipped up by 75- to 100-mile winds, poured in.

Antonis Kambouris, 21, reported: "The blow that finally broke open the loading door was from a refrigerator trailer up front. I was asleep when the alarm sounded. I awoke and took a lifebelt and jumped into the sea. In 15 minutes the ship was gone."

The Heraklion's captain, Emmanouel Vernikos was last seen rushing about the decks to direct the abandon ship.

"God knows what happened to the captain," one officer said. After the Heraklion radioed its final message, "We are sinking. Help us," the Greek government mobilized rescue forces and ordered an investigation. The Greek radio switched to somber music. National mourning for three days was proclaimed.

Ships from the U.S. 6th Fleet, British warships and Greek destroyers cruised the area of the sinking off the island of Milos Thursday night, turning search lights on the dark water and lighting flares as they looked for survivors and bodies.
